

Samia Nkrumah Bio

Samia Yaba Christina Nkrumah is the Founder and Director of the Kwame Nkrumah Foundation, which aims to promote the vision, ideas and legacy of her late Father, Dr. Kwame Nkrumah, Ghana's first President.

A former Member of Parliament, Samia is also the first woman to chair a political party in Ghana. She is a strong advocate for the political and economic unification of Africa to ensure the continent's future prosperity and stability.

Currently, Samia serves on the Board of Trustees of the Bibliotheca Alexandrina, a cultural institution located in Alexandria, Egypt, to promote understanding among different cultures, religions and ideologies. Schooled in Egypt and Ghana, Samia obtained a Bachelor's Degree and Master's Degree in Arabic and Middle Eastern Studies the School of Oriental and African Studies, in London. Samia Yaba speaks English, Arabic and Italian fluently.

Along side other descendants of leaders of the liberation of Africa, Samia is a founding member of the African Legacy Foundation, which strives to honor, preserve and revive the memory of Africa's historical fight against colonialism.

Samia is currently writing a book on her father and her experience as the daughter of one of Africa's foremost leaders.